Anatomy of a Lunar Eclipse

(Not to scale)

NASA: Triple image of the Blood Moon during the total lunar eclipse of July 16, 2000.

During a total lunar eclipse, the Earth casts a perfect shadow over the Moon. However, Earth's atmosphere can refract sunlight, allowing it to reach the eclipsed Moon and make it appear gray, yellow, orange or red. The amount and color of refracted light depends on the amount and type of dust or clouds in the atmosphere at the time of the eclipse.

I. The Significance of the Blood Moons Prophecy

John Hagee

“The history of the world is about to change forever, and God is sending us messages on His high-definition billboard by speaking to us in the heavens—using the Four Blood Moons; the question is . . . are we listening?” . . .
What earthshaking event will it be?

This we know: things are about to change forever!”These occurrences are not coincidental! This is the hand of God orchestrating the signs in the heavens. The final Four Blood Moons are signaling that something big is coming . . . Something that will change the world forever.”

Mark Biltz

“Something remarkable is on the horizon. God is about to move mightily in the world. . . . When God is about to be up to something big, He will send us signals via the sun and the moon on His feast days. This is huge!”
